Ebb-Tide Sames Cherridge, in Christian Pripa.

Long reaches of wet granes sway Where ran the sea but yesterday, And white-winged birds at succet drew To anchor in the crimenting bine. The boats lie on the grassy plain, Nor the nor fret at anchor chain ! Theirerrand done, their impulse spent.
Hald to an alien element,
With sails unset they idly lie
Though morning backons brave and nigh:
Like wounded birds, their flight denisd,
They lie, and long and wait the tide.

Of tough grass libers green and wet. A myriad thirsty creatures, pent In sorrowful imprisonment, Await the heat, distinct and sweet, Of the white waves' returning feet.
My soul their vigil joins, and shares
A gobler discontent than theirs.
Athirst like them, I patiently
Sit Hatening beside the sea. And still the waters outward glide When is the turning of the tide?

Come, pulse of God - come, heavenly thrill, We wait thy coming—and we will;
The world is vast, and very far
Its utmost verge and boundaries are.
Eut the hast kept thy word to-day
In India and in dim Cathay.
And the same mighty care shall reach Each humblest rock-pool of this beach. The gasping fish, the stranded keel, This dull dry soul of mine shall feel by freshening touch, and, satisfied, hall drink the fullness of the tide.

without going to the soup houses. When Gen. Grant was on board the Richmond a consul one day asked him whether the firing of the guns disturbed him. Said he, " Not half so much as a plano does."

Broad is the road that leads to debt, And thousands walk together there; Prompt payments find a narrow rut, With here and there a passenger,

A member of Congress chided his daughter because she permitted her lover to stay after ten o'clock. "La, pa," she said, "we were only holding a little extra."

An exchange says that Pennsylvania Dutch girls make good preserves. But it doesn't say how much sugar you take to a pound of Dutch girl, nor how long you let 'em boil.

Said a little girl of five : " Mama, who makes us naughty?" "Satan, my dear." "And who makes us good?" "God, dear." "Well, then, which works the bardest?"

A youth invested $1.50 through a New York advertisement to discover " How to appear well in society." The recipe which he received by return mail was short, simple, and easily understood : "Always keep your nose clean, and don't suck more than one finger at a time."

They had their usual evening quarrel as they eat by the hearth. On one side lay quietly a blinking dog, and on the other a purring cat, and the old woman pleaded with her growling husband: "Yust you look at dot gat und to nefer gwarrels und fights like us." the old growler, " I knows dot dem togeder once, and de

The Transcript says : "Among all the amuse ments that fashion has tried to render popular, whaling has been neglected; but from all accounts it is much better fun than polo, and more exciting. Now that whale oil is no longer a necessity, why not hunt the animal for sport?" When the Transcript man has been at sea a year and never once heard " There she blows!" will revise his opinions about the sport.

"Tis the last maid of Summer, Left firting alone,
All her youthful companions
Have get up and gone;
No druggist with paint-pot
And cosmestic is nigh,
To tint up her blushes, To improve on her eye.

A wealthy gentleman happened to remark, in the hearing of a waiter, that he would like to have some coffee such as he used to have at home in the years long ago. He was presently served with a cup of his much beloved beverage, and he exclaimed, " There is coffee!" The waiter had ordered the browning of some rye and beans, which, with a little chicory and a dash of milk, made the drinker happy.

In giving his experience the other night, an old forty-niner frankly admitted that his life had been a failure. Said he: "When I left Indeanny to come to Californy my whole ambition was to dig out gold enough so that I could go back home and buy a tumblin' shaft thrashin' machine and go about the country every fall doin' custom work and livin' on roast chickens. Now, here I am, and nary thrashin' machine yet, and, even if I had the machine, my appetite for chicken is gone. I tell you, boys, my hie's hin a failur."

This is the latest telephone story. A proud grandmamma, who has only just been promoted to the honors of that proud relationship, is roused in the dead of night by the inexorable bell. " Mamma, dear," comes to her the frightened voice of her beloved but inexperienced daughter, " I am sure baby has the croup. What shall I do with it?" Grandmamma replies that she will call the family doctor, and be with her anxious daughter in a moment. She awakens the doctor and tells him the terrible news she has heard from her daughter. The child is lifted, and it coughs. "That's not the croup," declares he, and declines to leave the house on such matters. He advises grandmamma also to stay in bed, and, all anxiety quieted, the trio settle down happy for the night.

A young gentleman and his blushing bride, who were recently married in Philadelphia, called the next week at an apartment house and were shown the flat that was to let by the loquacious person who officiates as janitor. This estimable woman, who would appear to be a good, motherly soul, went on to illustrate how very healthy the house happened to be: "There was Mrs. on the first floor; she came here a bride, and went away with three children, as pretty httle things as ever I sa . And there was Mrs. ____, the second, who had a little son born here, mem. and fourteen months after, a daughter.
